PhD GRANTS

Pain Relief Foundation is pleased to announce a Prize PhD Studentship, to enable a graduate to embark on a research career in human chronic pain.

Applications are invited from Universities, Academic Institutes and other potential Project Supervisors for this prestigious Studentship in human chronic pain research.

The grant award will be tenable for three years and will carry a tax-free stipend and tuition fees totaling £16,700 in the first year, with increases in years two and three. In addition, there will be a small budget available to cover consumables. There is no budget for equipment. The total grant is unlikely to exceed £60,000 over 3 years.

Applications should include the Supervisor's C.V. and complete details of the proposed project. The application should name two academic referees.
